3. GENERAL LICENSING FRAMEWORK AND REGULATORY REGIME

LICENSING FRAMEWORK

- 3.1 The Application submission requirements and evaluation criteria set forth in these Instructions will be used to award Individual and Class Licenses.
- 3.2 The TRC will not impose an undue limit on the number of Licenses that it will issue to future public telecommunications service providers or public telecommunications networks operators or on the types of networks and services authorized, provided that an Applicant is properly qualified and meets the requirements under these Instructions. Licenses will therefore be granted to all qualified Applicants that satisfy criteria that are, from time to time, published by TRC, unless there are objectively justifiable reasons not to do so. Objectively justifiable reasons not to grant Licenses may include, but are not limited to, constraints related to National security, safety, Scarce Resources, technical limitations and when, in accordance with Article 28 of the Telecommunications Law, award of the License to an Applicant would “lead to an anti-competitive environment in the market” for public telecommunications services in Jordan, together with normal network safeguards.
- 3.3 The use of Scarce Resources, as defined under Section 2, will trigger an Individual License requirement unless otherwise specified under Section 3.7.
- 3.4 Public rights of way resources involve the use by a Licensee of cables or wires buried under or along public streets, highways, publicly-owned railways, electric installations or other government-owned land and/or wires or cables suspended from utility poles and towers to provide telecommunications service. This definition includes any Licensee that utilizes public land to string its wires, cables or other physical facility.
- 3.5 Radio frequency spectrum resources involve the need to be allocated certain radio frequencies for use in the provision of the public telecommunications service and/or operation of the public telecommunications network. Except as set forth in Section 3.7, any use of radio frequency spectrum to provide a public telecommunications service and/or operate a public telecommunications network will require an Individual License, in addition to a separate Radio Spectrum License.

3.6 Numbering resources involve the need for blocks of telephone numbers to be allocated to Customers. As set forth under Section 3.7, public telecommunications service providers merely seeking a dialing code for carrier selection and carrier pre-selection will not require an Individual License. For purposes of clarity, only Licensees that provide specific telephone numbers to Customers, such as the existing Public Mobile Wireless Operators and fixed telecommunications operator, require the use of such Scarce Resources. Licensees that merely provide outbound calling capability via resale or other means do not require such numbering resources. The use of dialing codes for routing to enable carrier selection and carrier pre-selection functions as well as International Signaling Point Codes (“ISPC”) is not included in the definition.

3.7 Exempt Scarce Resources

3.7.1 The TRC has determined that the following uses of Scarce Resources are exempt from the Individual License requirement:

- radio frequency spectrum used by providers of public VSAT based services, to the extent that the only scarce resource used is radio spectrum directly related to VSAT operation. Such use of radio frequency spectrum will remain subject to TRC radio spectrum licensing procedures;
- radio frequency spectrum used on a secondary or non-interference basis, e.g., internationally unlicensed spectrum typically used for WiFi;
- use of dialing codes for routing to enable carrier pre-selection functions;
- dialing codes for carrier selection
- the use of ISPC; and
- any further exemptions as determined by the TRC in relevant Regulations.

3.7.2 The TRC has sole discretion in amending the number and nature of resources exempted and the extent and conditionality of such exemption.

3.8 Applications for the use of Scarce Resources associated with a License must be made separately under the relevant procedures.

3.9 An Applicant for a License that separately applies for the use of Scarce Resources to the relevant Government authority may be issued a License prior to receiving its authorization for the use of the Scarce Resources; in such event, however, the Licensee will not be permitted to offer the public telecommunications services or operate the public telecommunications network using such Scarce Resources until the Licensee obtains a spectrum license or an authorization for the use of numbering resources and/or public rights of way.

3.10 There will be no undue limitation upon the types of networks and technologies used by the Licensee. The Licensee may use any technology that is feasible for its Licensed Activities provided that it is in accordance with the License, Regulations and its application does not cause damage to public telecommunications networks or public telecommunications services or to public health, safety or the environment. The TRC may issue specific Regulations related to forms of services or technologies, following public consultation. The Licensee shall abide by such Regulations when issued.

- 3.11 Individual and Class Licenses (excluding amended Licenses) will be issued for a term of 15 years. Such Licenses will be eligible for renewal in accordance with instructions adopted pursuant to Article 38 of the Telecommunications Law. The License renewal instructions will include objective requirements and a transparent process whereby the TRC will verify, amongst other criteria that the Licensee has operated successfully and complied with its obligations under the License and is in compliance with all Regulations.
- 3.12 In order to apply for a License, the Applicant must be a Jordanian company established under the Companies Law and registered at the Ministry of Industry and Trade.
- 3.13 Parties interested in applying for a License must submit their Applications to the TRC in accordance with the required procedures as outlined in Section 4 of these Instructions.
- 3.14 Applicants are required to pay an initial License fee of JD 100,000 (One Hundred Thousand Jordanian Dinars) for an Individual License and JD 30,000 (Thirty Thousand Jordanian Dinars) for a Class License, payable by bank draft or wire transfer to the TRC on or before the date of signing of the license agreement.
- 3.15 With the submission of the Application, Applicants must post an Initial License Fee Bond with the TRC in the same amount as the Initial License Fee. The Initial License Fee Bond will be exercised by the TRC if the Applicant fails to pay the Initial License Fee and fails to acquire the License. The Initial License Fee Bond will be returned to the Applicant upon payment of the Initial License Fee or if the Application is rejected by the TRC,

REGULATORY REGIME

- 3.16 All Licensees will be regulated in accordance with the regulatory regime established by the TRC.
- 3.17 All Licensees shall have a basic set of rights and obligations under the Telecommunications Law and the applicable Regulations. Such rights and obligations shall be applicable to Licensees regardless of whether they are Class Licensees or Individual Licensees. Additional regulatory obligations or safeguards may apply if a specific determination or finding is made by the TRC regarding the classification of the Licensee. For example, certain Regulations may apply to a Licensee if such Licensee is found to be dominant or possess significant market power in a relevant market. Other specific Regulation may apply as legacy obligations on existing operators, such as revenue sharing obligations and the universal service obligations that apply to existing mobile wireless and fixed operators, respectively.

- 3.18 Where the Applicant applies for Scarce Resources as defined under Section 2, the TRC reserves the right to adopt additional Regulations linked to the use of these Scarce Resources, including (but not limited to) the requirement to participate in specific application procedures or competitive selection processes. In addition, the Regulations that relate to Scarce Resources will apply when a public telecommunications service provider or public telecommunications network operator gains access to such resources. The TRC plans during 2005 to issue Regulations on the criteria for award of and subsequent Regulation of spectrum licenses.
- 3.19 The TRC will regularly review and refine its general regime for the regulation of the telecommunications sector to ensure its sufficiency and completeness, taking into consideration market trends and developments. Licensees are subject to such a regime to the same extent that it applies to its Licensed Activities, though specific Regulations may apply to certain classes of licenses as addressed above.
- 3.20 Interested parties may refer to the TRC web-site for copies of the Telecommunications Law, as well as for copies of license forms, applicable Regulations as developed, and other documents.

EXISTING LICENSEES

- 3.21 If JT or any of the Existing Holders of Licenses that relate to the provision of Public Mobile Wireless Services wishes to provide telecommunications services, other than services already permitted under their existing licenses, they may apply for a license pursuant to these Instructions. Such a license would only be granted to a subsidiary or affiliate entity of JT or the existing holders of licenses that relate to the provision of various forms of Public Mobile Wireless Services. The subsidiary or affiliate entity must not be undertaking business activities at the time of the grant of a license and activities under the new license must both, be conducted by the entity, and, kept separate from activities that continue to be conducted under existing licenses. The grant of a new license would, for example, permit the independent provision of international services by subsidiaries or affiliates of the Existing Holders of Licenses that relate to the provision of various forms of Public Mobile Wireless Services, in a manner that ends the monopoly of JT in that area. In the event that JT or any Existing Holders of Licenses that relate to the provision of various forms of Public Mobile Wireless Services choose to transition its existing licensed activities to the integrated licensing regime in 2005, it will remain a requirement that activities beyond those that are currently licensed be conducted through subsidiary or affiliate corporate entities.

4. APPLICATION PROCEDURES

- 4.1 Applicants are required to submit one original and six (6) copies of the appropriate (for an Individual or a Class License) completed Application Form (as attached in Annex A and B and as published on the TRC web-site¹) in an

However, if a Licensee seeks to provide additional services not originally identified in the original Application Form it must file a prior notification with the TRC not less than thirty (30) days before initiating the new service. It may prove necessary and appropriate for TRC to publish specific Regulations or terms related to particular types or forms of service or technologies. Licensees will be required to abide by such Regulations when issued.
- 4.5 The TRC shall have the right to reject an Application if the information provided in the Application is incomplete, inaccurate or false or if it is not submitted in strict compliance with the requirements set out in these Instructions.
